Problem Gambling Awareness Month

March is Problem Gambling Awareness Month. The goal of this campaign is to educate the public and professionals about the warning signs of problem gambling and promote how to get help. Here are some common questions about problem gambling.

Isn't problem gambling just a financial problem?

No. Problem gambling is a mental health issue that responds to treatment. If you pay all of a problem gambler's debts, the person will still be a problem gambler. The real problem is that they have an uncontrollable urge to gamble.

What kind of people become problem gamblers?

Anyone who gambles can develop problems if they are not aware of the risks and do not gamble responsibly. When gambling behavior interferes with paying for basic needs, relationships and the workplace, a serious problem already exists.

Can children or teens develop gambling problems?

Youth sometimes participate in illegal forms of gambling, such as gambling on the Internet or betting on sports. Research shows that a vast majority of kids have gambled in some form before their 18th birthday, and that children may be more likely to develop problems related to gambling than adults. Parental attitudes and behavior play a role. Age of exposure plays a part, in that adults who seek treatment for problem gambling report having started gambling at an early age.

How much money do you have to lose before gambling becomes a problem?

The amount of money lost or won does not determine when gambling becomes a problem. Gambling becomes a problem when it causes a negative impact on any area of the individual's life.

Deadly New Concoction: "Dewshine"

Recently there have been deaths and injuries caused by the homemade concoction known as "dewshine," which is a combination of racing fuel and Mountain Dew, a soft drink.

Racing fuel is made up of 100% methanol, a non drinkable form of alcohol used for industrial and automotive purposes. Ingesting it can cause blurred vision, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, seizures, blindness, coma and death depending on the amount consumed.

Methanol is found in anti-freeze, canned heating sources, copy machine fluids, de-icing fluids, fuel additives, paint remover or thinner, shellac, varnish and windshield wiper fluid.

Users believe the poisonous chemical, methanol, can be used as a substitute for ethanol, the ingredient in alcoholic beverages that causes intoxication. They are not aware of its toxicity. As little as two tablespoons of methanol can be deadly to a child, according to The U.S. National Library of Medicine.

It is important to make sure children and adolescents understand how dangerous methanol can be and keep those products out of the hands of children and adolescents.
